LOCAL MINER DIES OF KNIFE WOUNDS

Following some hours of hearing from ten witnesses, a coroner's jury on Tuesday returned a verdict that the deceased, Louis Gal, came to his death at his home in Blairmore on December 21st from knife wounds administered by one Joseph Lyngell during a quarrel.

The accused man told of returning from work to the cabin occupied by himself and Gal, and of Gal becoming mad after an argument, attacking first with a poker and then resorting to the knife. Lyngell is held in custody pending trial.

The remains of Louis Gal were laid to rest on Tuesday, December 26th.

ANOTHER OLDTIMER PASSES

Passing to his eternal reward on Friday last was one of the best known of Pass oldtimers in the person of Daniel (Danny) Lewis, aged 64.

Danny had been in ill health for six months or more, and the end of his troubles were not unexpected.

Danny was a native of Wales, coming to eastern Canada some forty years ago, locating for a while at Springhill in Nova Scotia. He later moved west, his location next being Coleman, where he resided for several years as a coal miner. About 1910 he moved to Blairmore, and in partnership with Jim Burrows operated a pool hall where the F. M. Thompson Co. store now stands. At the opening of the First Great War, he was one of the first to volunteer for service, serving overseas with the 54th Battalion and returning a year or two later in a somewhat crippled condition. Since his health has depended largely upon a war pension for his livelihood. He had many friends, not only in the Pass, but throughout Alberta and British Columbia.

Funeral service was conducted at the United church on Tuesday afternoon, when the building was crowded to capacity. A most appropriate discourse was delivered by Rev. James McKelvey. In addition to the two hymns sung, a splendid rendition was offered by a choir of some fifteen to twenty Welsh voices, also a solo by Mr. A. Rhys.

At the graveside the choir again sang, and the final consignment was delivered by Mr. McKelvey, and Mr. Harold Pinkney for the BESL. Services throughout were without doubt the most impressive held in Blairmore for many years.

HILLCREST HAPPENINGS

Dec. 27.—Donald Grant, of Calgary, was a Christmas visitor with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Grant.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Duke, of Fernie, spent the Yuletide here with Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Duke.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Thornton and Mr. and Mrs. G. McInnes were Christmas Day guests of F.O. and Mrs. A. Berlington at Claresholm.

WORLD HAPPENINGS
BRIEFLY TOLD

Deaths in Yorkshire collieries this year have been double the average for the last five years.

Only two persons have been killed in air raids on Woking, England, although 434 bombs have been dropped.

Argentina and Spain have been invited to the world trade union conference opening in London Feb. 6; it was disclosed.

Ginger, a rabbit which is ship's pet on a British warship, has travelled 20,000 miles at sea and gone through three major invasions.

Believed to be the oldest member of the Salvation Army in Britain, Envo Lawrence Lower died in his 100th year in Rytton, England.

A storekeeper in Tottenham, worried by the daily queues of tired women, bought some second-hand church pews and put them outside his door.

Nearly all of the village of Glympton, including Glympton Park, an estate of 1,021 acres, has been sold by auction.

According to the Swedish marines yearly calendar, a total of 475 German U-boats have been sunk by the Allies since the beginning of the war.

A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty, who said he "spoke with knowledge," warned that there might yet be a renewal of attack by heavy German U-boat packs.

Invasion History

Canadian and British Craft Teamed Up To Put Boss Out Of Commission

Canada's secret naval war that preceded and complemented the invasion of Normandy is a secret no longer.

In an exclusive story in London's Evening Standard, Naval Correspondent Gordon Holman has told how Canadian and British craft teamed up to bring off the greatest mass U-boat slaughter in history, with slight casualties to themselves. Outstanding loss for Canada was the sinking of HMCS Athabaskan in the early stage of the fight.

The operation was tremendous in scope, lengthy, and eminently successful.

First phase of the campaign was to seal off the English Channel so U-boat forces in the French ports could not be reinforced. The second consisted of destroying the U-boats already in the French ports, and the third was the conveying of the tremendous invasion armadas as they moved with freight-train regularity to the continent.

Only one of the big ships taking troops and supplies to the front was lost.

PREFERRED TROUBLES

When Charles M. Schwab, the steel magnate, was 72 years old he was sued for a large sum of money. In court he offered a formidable defense and won, but before leaving the stand he asked for and received permission to say a few words. "I am an old man," he said, "and I have had a long and eventful career. I want to say that a great many of my troubles have come from trying to help other people. If you young people want to avoid trouble, be hard-boiled and say 'no' to everybody. You will then walk through life untroubled, but" (here a humorous expression lit up his face) "you will have to do without friends and you won't have much fun."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

DECEMBER 31
THE BASIS OF COURAGE FOR THE FUTURE

Golden text: Wherefore, my beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labor is not vain in the Lord. I Corinthians 15:58.

Lesson: Matthew 16:13-20; II Peter 3:14-18; I John 3:1-3.

Devotional reading: Revelation 5:8-14.

Explanations and Comments

A Great Confession of Faith in the Basic Fact of the Lord's Messiahship. Matthew 16:13-20. Caesarea Philippi (now Banias) at the base of Mount Hermon in the Lebanon Range, has a magnificent situation 1100 feet above sea level. Jesus had been teaching and healing in the region about the Sea of Galilee, where the ever-present crowds prevented his having quiet talks with his chosen followers whom he was training to carry on his work when he should leave it, and one day he started northward to be alone with them. When they had reached the neighborhood of Caesarea Philippi he suddenly asked them, "Who do men say that the Son of Man is?" The disciples readily answered that some men thought him to be John the Baptist; others, Elijah; and yet others, Jeremiah or some other prophet.

"Peter was speaking for a minority. The people saw in Jesus a superlatively great Teacher, indeed, more than a Teacher, a Prophet. But no one thought of calling him the Messiah (William G. Chanter).

"But who say ye that I am?" Jesus asked. He had been revealing himself to them by his words and his deeds; have they learned the truth about him? Instantly and with sincere conviction Peter answered, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." That answer "thrilled our Master to the depths. He was understood. 'Blessed are thou Simon Bar-Jonah [son of Jonah]," he exclaimed, "for human lips have not revealed unto thee this, but My Father who is in heaven."

An Exhortation to Growth in Righteous Living. II Peter 3:14-18. "Wherefore, beloved," wrote Peter, "seeing that ye long for these things (new heavens, new earth, righteousness, verse 13), take care that ye are in peace, blameless, without blemish." "Does your Lord delay his coming? It is so much space to receive him! Learn to make a right use of the patience of our Lord" (Matthew Henry). "For human lips have not revealed unto you, Paul too, had counselled them to make good use of the divine forbearance. 'As also all his epistles, speaking in them of these things.' Such teaching is found in Rom. 2:4 and elsewhere in that epistle and in the Pastoral Epistles: 'Patience and confidence in God's patient working out of his purpose everywhere characteristic of Paul'.

Warning To Germany

General Eisenhower Says That Militarism Must Be Stamped Out

The German people were told in a proclamation issued in the name of Gen. Eisenhower to beware of joining or encouraging others to join underground military organizations.

The broadcast proclamation, eighth in a series explaining Allied military government plans to the Germans, was reported by the Office of War Information.

It told the German people that militarism "must be stamped out in Germany" and that the population would be called upon to surrender articles of "military significance" including weapons, ammunition, explosives and radio transmitters.

ONE HEAVY DEBT

The death of one million children in France is attributed to malnutrition, caused through German cruelty during the war. That's a heavy debt that Germany can never repay no matter how stern the peace terms imposed upon her.

"Keep Your Chin Up, Sonny"

This Canadian soldier, Pte. J. S. P. Bowen, Birch River, Man., one of the first Canadians to wade ashore in the assault upon Sicily on July 10, 1943, and now granted a 30-day Christmas leave to Canada, bids farewell to his little Italian friend in a village not far behind the front lines in Italy.

City Of Westminster

Covering Practically Small Area Has Been Hit By Everything

In five years of aerial attack, the city of Westminster, which contains the houses of parliament, Westminster Abbey and many government buildings, has been hit by more than 1,300 high explosive bombs, land mines and oil bombs, thousands of incendiaries and 30 flying bombs, Lionel R. McColvin, city librarian, reported.

Nearly 30,000 buildings in that relatively small district, which covers less than four square miles, were damaged and 300 destroyed. Of 1,099 civilians killed, 20 have never been identified. The city had 1,955 alerts.

THE BEST TIMES

According to the London Sunday Express, Mr. and Mrs. William Goulding, of Sherston (Wilts), who reached their diamond wedding Nov. 4, brought up a family of nine on less than 13s. a week. A farm worker, Mr. Goulding says he did better on 10s. a week than they do now on big wages. Then, they always had a side of bacon and a sack of flour in the house. "They were the best times," he says.

Japanese War

New York Authority Thinks It Will Not Be Short

"The Japanese war won't be the 'cinch' that some Canadians believe; in some respects the winning of the war in the Pacific theatre will be more difficult than the winning of the war in Europe; and, in any case, the duration of the Japanese war will not be short," said T. A. Blason, New York, in an interview in Calgary.

Mr. Blason is an authority on foreign affairs and author of three books dealing with military and political aspects of the Far East.

GOOD ADVICE

The boys were advancing in Burma and the heat was terrific. Tommy wrote home to his mum and said in his letter: "The heat is stazing, mum. It's 108 in the shade." Some months later he got a letter back from his mum, who wrote: "Very worried about you son. For goodness sake keep out of the shade."

A good fish scraper can be made out of some soft drinks bottle caps that are nailed to a small piece of wood or a worn-out scrubbing brush.

The British Navy

Possibly Saved Britain From Attempted Invasion

Mr. Churchill's assertion in an interview with a Paris paper that if the Germans had landed in Great Britain in 1940 we should have been beaten is the most categorical statement I have seen on that subject yet. "That," the P.M. added, "was General Hitler's first mistake. This error cost him the war."

But was it, after all, merely an error? Had the Germans, the power to invade Britain after the fall of France? That it was an egregious mistake not to try may be conceded. But it has always been assumed that for a successful invasion by sea the invading force would need both air supremacy and naval supremacy. For Hitler to count on air supremacy would not have been unreasonable; his defeat in the Battle of Britain was not what paper-calculations pointed to.

But naval supremacy was something Germany never had. The remotest hope of enjoying Transport of troops by air was not sufficiently developed in 1940 to make a purely air-borne invasion, supported by purely airborne supplies, practicable. So at least it would seem; but Mr. Churchill, after all, has been twice First Lord of the Admiralty and once Secretary of State for Air. If anyone can speak with authority on the conditions of airborne invasion he can—Zondon Spectator.

Boy Immigrants

Plans To Send Fifty Boys A Year To Canada

Garfield Weston, Toronto-born millionaire who now is Conservative member of parliament for Macleod, announced a private post-war immigration project under which he plans to send 50 boys a year from his constituency in Cheshire to Canada.

Under the plan if the boys wish to stay he will help them to get on. If they wish to return to Britain, they may do so without obligation.

He said: "Canada is the grandest country on earth for a man who means to get on."

A special train despatched by the Great Western Railway from a town in the British Midlands carried canned food for liberated France in 17,412 cases weighing 420 tons.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

NUMBER ONE LESSON

By HELEN PARTCH

McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Alec noticed her when he first sat down. The girl's seat was next to his. Her eyes met his briefly—wide, timid, heavenly blue. Her hands were gripped in her lap. Alec thought, "I wonder if she's here alone?"

Then a roar went up. The race was on. Alec's attention switched to the track. Excitement burned his body, choked his breath till it caught in a sigh, exploded in a cheer, exhaled in a final disgusted groan. Galahad first. Quaker Lady fourth. When! Alec mopped his face. Close call. He hadn't placed his bet. A hunch perhaps. He had been late. He had thought, "Tomorrow," and hurried to his seat. That was a stroke of luck!

He felt a tug at his side and looked down to find the girl twisting at her bracelet which was caught on his coat. She pulled desperately. Her face was scarlet. "Allow me," Alec grinned. "Would you like the coat? Or do I get the bracelet?"

"I'm sorry." The girl gave a final jerk and the bracelet came loose, tearing the coat. She lifted mortified eyes to Alec's.

His glance reassured her. "What's a coat more or less? I nearly blew the works on Quaker Lady."

"I—I did!"

"You—? Say," Alec looked at the wide eyes, the parted lips, the white throat where a little pulse beat faintly, "are you alone?"

"Yes. Why?"

"This is no place for you. Rough-neck, pickpocket—pickpocket!" In a flash Alec's mind went back an hour. He had taken a shower at the Woodlawn Club after a bout of tennis with Ted Graham. Alec had put on his coat and dropped his bill-fold carelessly into the side pocket. Ted said, "Why don't you give that to charity? Better than having it lifted."

Alec had grunted and started to transfer his money to a safer place. Andy Noyes had come up. They talked a minute. Alec had run for the bus. The fare was in his change purse. He remembered the wallet now. He hated to reach into his pocket, the pocket where the girl's bracelet had caught. He did reach, slowly. The bill-fold was gone.

Alec sat in stunned silence, his eyes on the track. He knew what he must do and he hated to do it. He could see nothing looking at them a pair of red lips, and a white throat where a little pulse beat faintly. His mouth was dry. He turned abruptly. Blue eyes lifted to his, questioning, puzzled. Fine act! Alec smiled crookedly. He said, "It's hot. Want a cold drink?"

"I'd love it."

They left the stand and walked to a luncheon booth. Alec asked, "Will you tell me your name?"

"Of course, Alice Crocker."

Phony probably. "I'm Alec Newcomb." Sap! He glanced at the large white handbag the girl carried. "I wonder why you are here alone? Not that it's any of my business."

"It's fascinating."

"This is a good place to lose hard-earned money."

"I know it. I'm a stenographer at Smith and Bolles. Dan would kill me if he knew I was here."

"Dan?"

"Dan's my brother. None of my crowd cares for the races."

Alec's brows knit in sardonic amusement. What a line! He said, "I've been in Smith and Bolles a number of times. I never noticed you."

"I'm in Mr. Bolles' private office."

Alec took a long pull at his cold soda. He started to speak when the girl murmured, "Here's Dan now." She lifted her head defiantly. "Hello, Dan."

Alec introduced the two men. Her eyes held Dan's. Alec tried to read their expression. Suddenly a man on Alec's other side grabbed his arm. "Hey, Alec, give me a hand, will you? Anna is passing out with the heat." It was Rod Lewis, a friend. He looked worried and upset. His wife was leaning heavily against him.

"We must catch this bus," Dan said to Alice. "Excuse us, won't you?" He nodded to the others, caught Alice by the arm, and whisked her about.

"Wait!" Alec started after them. They didn't hear.

Rod and Alec got Anna to the car. Alec's face was grim. His eyes were on the road, and on a yellow bus disappearing in the distance.

Rod offered him a lift home. "Anna will be all right as soon as we get moving."

"All right." Fool, Nitwit! Sucker! Rod dropped Alec at his apartment. Alec ran up the steps of the building. In the lower hall on a bench sat Ted. He looked sheepish. "I've been waiting for you." He tossed Alec his wallet. "Missed this?"

Alec stared. Incredibly, suspicion, rage darkened his eyes.

"Ted smiled" wryly. "Goon. Hit me. I took it to teach you a lesson. The idea went sour when I thought it over. What's the matter? Heat get you, or were you worried?"

"Oh, no! Money is nothing in my life!" Alec dropped on the bench beside Ted. His eyes narrowed thoughtfully. "You sell to Smith and Bolles. Know a girl there named Alice Crocker?"

"Sure. Bolles' secretary. A peach. A peach!" Alec's mouth twisted to a grin. "You don't realize it, wise guy, but that girl owes you a good slap in the face!"

Storm Black Market.

Angry Italians Beat Operators In Rome And Take Food

Thousands of housewives and unemployed men stormed the black market in the Testaccio district of Rome, beating the operators and grabbing foodstuffs being hawked by street vendors.

The rioters mainly were members of the rapidly growing League of Hunger (organized recently to demand that the Government ration essential foods and suppress the black market).

The riot was touched off when angry housewives failed in an effort to induce a black market operator to sell a large stock of spaghetti at reasonable prices.

A squad of 50 policemen broke up the riot.

Some of the prices which have caused bitter resentment in Rome include 35 cents each for eggs, $4 a pound for butter, $3 a pound for cheese and 50 cents a pound for flour and corn meal.

The Newest Invention

British Engineer Claims His Gadget Will Cut Gas Consumption

Edward Date, engineer, has invented a process for using "tap water" to help drive an automobile, the London Evening News reported. The gadget measures four by nine inches, and costs $40.

Date claims the device increases power 20 per cent, and decreases gasoline consumption 33 per cent. According to the News, it operates by transforming water in a generator into "molecular content by lowering pressure," the water then being drawn into a cylinder after the gas and air mixture attains high pressure.

The article said no heat is required in the device, which Date claims might be used on aircraft also, and that the British ministry of supply had ordered one for a test.

Face Great Odds

Canadian Fighter Pilots Now Operating Further Into Germany

Canadian fighter pilots now on their second tour of operations are facing greater odds than ever before, they believe, since fighter casualties have been higher during the last few months than at any time since the battle of Britain.

"The risk will become greater as we get on into Germany," said Sqn. Ldr. Arthur Sager of Vancouver, commanding officer of a Spitfire squadron in Belgium.

"Spitfires were not intended to stand up against the flak and the guns we have to face now," he said. At the same time the average age of fighter pilots in the R.C.A.F. squadrons appears to be rising. When a couple of years ago the average age was 21 to 22 years, the men now appear to be around 25 years.

Although air training shortly will cease in Canada, fighter pilots who already had made an important contribution to the air war have returned to do second tours, and this is responsible for the rising average age.

In this squadron, those on their second tour included Sqn. Ldr. Sager, P.O. Albert Thomas of Winnipeg, P.O. W. J. Sherman of Simpson, Sask., P.O. Lt. Chuck Charlesworth of Duncan, B.C., and P.O. Lt. Phil Blades of Victoria.

Each man was doing a second tour because he had chosen to do so, but their eyes were tired and they looked older than their years.

If a man's honest he'll admit he's tired when he gets around the end of his second tour, the C.O. said. "Sitting around thinking about flying, waiting to go up, is almost as much of a strain as flying itself," Charlesworth said.

Interesting Experience

Newspaper Correspondent Dodges Nazis For Two Months

Any time newspaperman Paul Morton turns his hand to fiction and goes in for spy stories, he won't have to use his imagination. He can draw on his own experience as a British agent 200 miles behind the German lines.

Two months of ducking Nazis in northern Italy—battling them when necessary—and finally escaping through their lines gave him enough adventure to fill a couple of best-sellers, and gave the Nazis a headache or two to boot.

Sporting the wings of a British army paratrooper on the tunic of his war correspondent's uniform, the Canadian newspaperman has returned to the Dominion to represent the London Express in Canada. Before going overseas he had worked for the Halifax Herald and the Toronto Star, and he went into Italy as correspondent of the Star.

MEMORIAL GARDEN

Near the little cottage where Cal. John McCrea, writer of "In Flanders Fields," was born, a memorial garden to the poet will be established, a dispatch from Guelph says. Nothing could be more appropriate than a memorial garden to the man who immortalized the poppy, particularly those blooming "between the crosses row on row" in Flanders' Fields, states the Lethbridge Herald.

Scientific Studies

Being Carried On To Forecast Fur And Game Supplies

The day is coming when scientific studies and radio will make the showy owl relatively unimportant as an indicator of fur conditions in the Far North—but it's still a long way off.

Resources department officials said the assembling of information on the animal life cycles of the north is continuing under a plan of co-operation between the government and the Oxford University bureau of animal population studies.

The detailed examinations conducted by scientists seek to establish a method of forecasting accurately the cycles in animal life so that natives and others dependent on game and fur for their livelihood can be forewarned of seasons of scarcity and plenty.

"We believe that in years to come, with records of plenty and scarcity in the north extending over decades and recording various factors in detail, it will be possible to be accurate in forecasting game and fur supplies as it now is possible in forecasting the weather," one authority said.

Some cycles have been roughly established. The white fox cycle from plenty through scarcity to plenty is about four years; snowshoe rabbit, about 10; lemming, about four; snowy owl, about four; grouse, about 10; ptarmigan, about four. The studies have indicated that cycles may affect even the larger animals such as polar bears.

Scientists already know the relationship between the cycles affecting the fox, lemming and snowy owl, all on a basis of about four years. When the lemming is scarce, the fox and the owl either perish or migrate. Reports of these conditions might not reach the north for many months, but the owl carries the news quickly by hurrying south as soon as he finds food hard to obtain.

Organizations such as the snowy owl committee for Canada begins reporting unusual numbers in southern areas and this means a scarcity of small animals in the north. That scarcity makes the foxes hungry and they trap easily and therefore the years of a snowy owl flight south usually is one in which the fur catch is high.

Eventually the government may establish research stations in the north where studies of animal life will be conducted, and indications of shortages reported at once by radio.

Have hereditary characteristics a definite effect on young chicks?

HERE'S THE ANSWER

You, Vitality, health and bone structure of young chicks depend greatly on the "quality" of the feed they are fed. In turn, the health, vigor and growth of baby chicks depend largely on the food you give them. So be sure you have a strong, healthy brood by feeding your laying hens "Miracle" Hatching Mash at least 3 months before you collect eggs for hatching. If you have plenty of farm grade, use your own feed by using "Miracle" Hatching Mash Supplement.

Volcanic Island

Republic Of San Salvador Has A Unique History

This week marked the third anniversary of the entrance into the war of our smallest, but one of our promptest allies.

Could you identify it if you knew that:

It is about the size of Maryland, but has the densest population of any American republic, 146 persons to the square mile, against 41 in the United States?

It is America's most volcanic country, with four major volcanoes in constant or recent eruption, three of them so strange in their behavior as to rank among volcanologists as scientific phenomena?

One of its volcanoes, Izcalco, has no crater?

One of its volcanoes, which erupted in 1917, boiled away an entire lake in the process, first signs of the eruption being a dull glow under the water?

The third of its phenomenal volcanoes is the only one known to have been born in a lake, all the fish in which were killed by gases before the eruption?

It is the Republic of El Salvador.—Minneapolis Star Journal.

Women's Army

Recently In Saskatchewan Has Reached High Peak

A red alert day in the Canadian Women's Army Corps occurred when the 2000th recruit to be enlisted since the organization of the Corps in Saskatchewan some three years ago was attested at the Army Reception Centre in Regina. The girl with the 1,999 predecessors was Pte. Ruth E. Gohrke.

Her sister, Pte. Christel E. Gohrke, became Miss Two Thousand and One. The girls are from Mazenod, Sask.

The Canadian Women's Army Corps in Saskatchewan embarked on its military career in October, 1941 with Major Helen K. Rankin, Moose Jaw, in command. Its first regimental number was allotted to a young woman from Richmond, Sask., now known as Capt. Helen Andrea, District Quartermaster for the Canadian Women's Army Corps. Enlisting its 2000th recruit, the C.W.A.C. in Saskatchewan looked back on over three years of service, its sphere of action during that time developing from provincial to Dominion to world-wide.

To the members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps directly concerned with recruiting this is an especially proud occasion. In the words of Capt. P. A. M. Quinn, Moose Jaw, District Recruiting Officer for the C.W.A.C., "In three years of continuous effort, we are proud of our results. In every phase of the war effort, Saskatchewan women have played an outstanding and distinctive role. This new recruiting record emphasizes further the determination of Saskatchewan women to serve their country at the time of its greatest crisis."

Capt. Quinn does however strike a note of caution. "Because we have reached a proud peak in our recruiting efforts," she says, "does not mean that we can rest on our laurels. Thousands of women are still required for service with the Canadian Army, particularly those qualified in the commercial field. Nevertheless whatever her former occupation, a volunteer will be placed in the job where she can best assist in the great partnership and responsibility that the C.W.A.C. have already proven they can undertake."

The Privates Gohrke are not entirely new to uniform having worn the uniform of civilian employees at No. 25 E.F.T.S., Assiniboia, Sask., for almost a year. Immediately prior to their enlistment in the Canadian Women's Army Corps they were employed in the diet kitchen at Port San. Anxious to don a uniform again however they decided to join the C.W.A.C. Their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Gohrke, reside at Mazenod.

The word "sherrif" comes from an old English title, "shire reeve," meaning a custodian of the peace of the country.

Dutch Boys Helping Allied Soldiers In Holland

giving invaluable assistance to the European Boy Scouts have been liberating armies of Europe.

One of the latest stories reaching Canada concerns the way in which Dutch Boy Scouts are helping the Allied soldiers in Holland. They have worked at resetting the cobblestone approaches to bridges so that Allied motor transport could proceed more swiftly.

After nightfall these scouts have acted as guides to soldiers whose duties take them out in the surrounding country. Many of the lads speak fluent English and have often acted as interpreters to Canadian, British and American officers who have had difficulty in making their requests or orders understood by the Dutch population.

THE UNDERLYING STRUGGLE

For the moment the German counter offensive on the Western front has driven into the background news of that underlying struggle of ideas which has been coming up into the open recently in Greece and the other liberated countries of Europe. In the war of arms, the battlefield is a clearly defined one. But in this war of ideas there are no frontiers. The enemy is not only the German and the Jap. For this battle of right versus wrong, of a materialistic conception of living against a God centered life, must be fought in the hearts of men everywhere.

All round the world there are signs that this battle of ideas is coming to a climax. If we don't watch out, we may be caught just as unprepared for this war as we were for the war of arms in 1939. There is the same evidence of blindness and unreality now as there was then. We did everything in the thirties but introduce the material and moral rearmament that was needed. Today there is talk about new systems, economic adjustments and so on, but these are all fundamentally materialistic weapons with which to stem the onrush of materialistic ideas. They alone will never do the trick.

What do we need? First of all, people who can see the issue clearly and who will then do something about it.

Many of us are easily fooled by these materialistic ideas and often unwittingly aid the enemy because we really don't know what we're shooting for. People whose ideas are guided by their own selfish interests and desire for comfort will quickly become the tools of forces out to create the division and disunity on which they can ride into power.

Men, on the other hand, who put the interests of the country first, whose faith in God is real and who put these principles to work in home and business can quickly produce a working answer to the most complicated problem.

THE PREMIER'S MESSAGE

We regret that Premier Manning's Christmas message reached us too late for our Christmas edition, December 22nd. However, in it he wished to join in the Yuletide messages and greetings commemorating the birth of One whose message, "Peace on Earth," would be truly fulfilled. Thoughts of all at this Christmas were naturally with those of our men and women who were absent at a time when we all wanted loved ones to enjoy the family circle. As we enter the New Year, we may have the assurance that, by each doing his share at home as on the battlefronts of the world, our families may again be re-united and victory reign supreme. May Divine Providence guide and bless our united efforts to that end.

TOMORROW'S PRIVATE HANDI-TALKIE... Knees-deep in your favorite fishing waters, you can call the camp on your private radio-telephone to let the boys know what the trout are taking. From your car, you can call home to say you're on the way. The handi-talkie will be a marvel of everyday life not only in sports but in every type of business and industry—planned for you by men who think of tomorrow.

WHO, indeed, doesn't look forward to the good things of tomorrow—when peace comes again? Yet we cannot for an instant relax our vigilance—not so long as there is a single armed enemy soldier at large—Nazi or Jap!

• We must fight to the end the battle against waste; we must keep production at its highest pitch; we must salvage fats and waste paper and metals; we must conserve gasoline and rubber; and, above, all, we must continue buying and keeping Victory Bonds and War Savings Certificates.

• Does a soldier lay his rifle down when enemy resistance slackens for a moment? No! And no more may we at home withdraw our help by cashing in our Victory Bonds. They represent a pledge to our government and our fighting forces that we will back them to the last. This we must do.

• Let us all be men who think of tomorrow... by holding our home front battle lines today!

New Air Routes

THE NEED OF THE ALLIED NATIONS for air routes for the transport of men and materials have led to the opening up of many new air bases and to the development of much land which had formerly been wilderness. On this continent, territory in Labrador and in the North-West, which was in the past populated very sparsely or not at all, has been built up with modern air bases, and has become as familiar to airmen and their passengers as air ports in the populated areas. Canadians have great interest in the development of new air routes with bases in this country, both because of their importance in the Allied war strategy, and because of what they may mean to Canada in times of peace. Recent conferences on post-war aviation have given indication that Canada will continue to occupy the important position she now holds in relation to air transport.

Air Route To Middle East

While the opening up of new territory on this continent for air bases has attracted considerable interest, it is doubtful whether it is generally known that there has been similar development in Africa, where a chain of great bases has been built to serve the air route to the Middle East. This route, which became a most important one when Italy entered the war in 1940, has contributed a great deal to the progress of the West African Colonies. In addition to the building of bases, many new roads have been constructed and thousands of native Africans have been trained as radio and telephone operators, mechanics and drivers. It is estimated that under ordinary conditions, it would have taken several generations to build up a similar body of skilled workmen. In establishing this great chain of air fields, which have played such a vital part in supplying Allied forces in the Middle East, Britain also brought many advantages to that section of the Empire.

Many Benefits To Colonies

In an article on this subject published recently by the British Ministry of Information, it was stated that the bases for this air route were commenced by British engineers twenty years ago. They were built in jungles and on equatorial swamps, and enormous difficulties were encountered in landing landing fields and runways. However, they proved of great value in the planning of Mediterranean strategy. Takoradi, on the Gold Coast, was developed into an assembly depot and in one three-month period, 1,500 R.A.F. planes were sent from there to the Middle East. The effects of the building up of this air route on the progress of the Empire are summed up by a British writer as follows: "Thus the British and Colonial Governments, under the stimulus of British enterprise, have in the course of winning the war conferred enormous benefits on the colonial peoples, which will profoundly influence the whole development of the African continent."

Self-Serve Hotel

Idea Of Proprietors In Illinois Has Proved A Success

Taking a tip from self-service markets the Odorizzi brothers of St. Louis, Ill., converted their 15-room hotel into a "help yourself" inn a year ago. The wartime pinch, which sent service standards of most hotels hurtling downward and closed the doors of others, merely prodded the ingenuity of Louis and Victor Odorizzi. When their desk clerk got his "greetings" from Uncle Sam there was no gnashing of teeth nor haunting of local employment agencies. Equipping the desk in the lobby with a supply of envelopes, an open register and keys to all 15 rooms, the Odorizzis decided to let John Q. Public look out for himself. A sign tacked above the door instructed the guest to register, choose a key, deposit his money in one of the envelopes along with his name, address and room number and climb upstairs to pleasant dreams, dragging his luggage behind him.

As well as curing the employment headache, managing a co-op hotel has given the Odorizzis a new confidence in their fellow man. Asked whether the "honest" system of collecting room rent didn't prove an expensive proposition, Victor came back with an emphatic "No!" "Not one penny have we lost since we hit on this idea a year ago," he said. "The hotel is filled every night mostly with transient trade, and every morning the money is waiting on the desk when we come to collect. . . . What's more, our customers don't walk off with linen, towels, ash trays and everything else that isn't nailed down."

Hog Production

Alberta Is Far In The Lead For 1944

Figures of hog production in Canada for the first nine months of 1944 show that Alberta is still far in the lead. Up to the end of September, Alberta had contributed 2,261,000 to the flow of hogs into commercial channels, eventually to feed Allied armies overseas. Ontario stood second with 1,553,000, Saskatchewan third with 1,484,000, and Manitoba fourth with 636,000.

Alberta's marketings increased 640,000 this year over last, or about 40 per cent, but there are signs that production is now falling off—Lethbridge Herald.

Price Control And Rationing Information

Q.—The other day I noticed a sign placed in the restaurant where I was eating which advised the customers that they were only entitled to one cup of coffee or tea per meal. I was under the impression that there was no limit on the amount of coffee or tea one could now be served.

A.—Some restaurants are still displaying signs stating that government regulations require them to give only one serving of tea or coffee per meal. These signs should be removed. Restaurants may limit servings of tea and coffee if they wish but must do it on their own authority. There is no longer any such government regulation. The Wartime Prices and Trade Board regulations state, however, that sugar for tea or coffee is to be served in restaurants only with the first cup.

Q.—Is it necessary to have an essentially certificate in order to purchase a new hot air furnace?

A.—Essentially certificates are no longer required to purchase new hot air furnaces. Use of such certificates has saved sufficient furnaces to meet essential requirements. Available supplies will be permitted to move in the normal way.

Q.—Is there going to be another cut in the butter ration?

A.—The butter ration is being reduced from seven ounces to approximately six ounces per person a week at the first of the year by making butter coupons valid one at a time instead of in pairs and by having three of these coupons becoming good each month. The butter ration coupons will remain valid until declared valid like sugar and preserves coupons.

Q.—When applying for coupons for evaporated milk, is it necessary to have your ration book with you?

A.—Yes, definitely, you must present your No. 5 ration book when applying for canned milk.

Please send your questions or your request for the pamphlet "Consumers' News" or the Blue Book in which you keep track of your rationing privileges mentioning the name of this paper to the nearest Wartime Prices and Trade Board office in your province.

Had To Be Last

Bomb Finally Finished Kicking Career Of French Army Mule

The services of animals in war time are so often taken for granted that it is consoling to learn that at least one memorial has been erected in France to a mule. The inscription reads: "In memory of Maggie, who in her time kicked two colonels, four majors, ten captains, twenty-four lieutenants, forty-two sergeants, four hundred and thirty-two other ranks, and—one Mills bomb." Her long life was probably due to the order in which she did her army kicking.—Manchester Guardian.

For War Brides

Booklet Containing Information Distributed In Britain

"How do Canadian women dress in winter?", wonders the pretty English wife of a Canadian signman. "How much luggage can I take to Canada with me?", asks the Scottish bride of an R.C.A.F. navigator. "What kind of a house will I live in?", "Can I get a job?", "Can I take any money with me?", there are the hundred and one questions that race through the thoughts of the thousands of British women coming to Canada with their husbands or to join their husbands' people.

The Department of National Defence and the Wartime Information Board have co-operated in a booklet in which these questions and many more are answered. Details of travel, customs, and immigration regulations, luggage, money are dealt with. The constitution of Canada is explained, the provinces discussed, distances between cities mentioned. Details of weather, Canada's war effort, shopping, schools, churches, sports clubs all come in for an explanatory word.

A glossary is included which explains among other things that while in the United Kingdom the word suspenders denotes garters, in Canada it means braces; that a draper's shop is called a dry goods store; that a geyser is a hot water heater; that petrol is known as gasoline.

Called "A Welcome to War Brides," this booklet will be distributed throughout the United Kingdom and will be available to every bride of a Canadian serviceman who contemplates making the trip out to her future home.

King Solomon's Mines

Uncover Traces Of An Ancient Civilization In Africa

A British scientist conducting an archaeological investigation in the foothill area in Rhodesia, South Africa, has uncovered traces of an ancient civilization in the Zimbabwe district. They are formations and terraces used by an ancient people for agricultural purposes.

And so well built were irrigation channels to the terraces that not an inch of rainfall would be lost in several miles of territory.

There were ancient dwellings of many civilizations, relics of the Stone and Bronze Ages, and Chinese writings. Copper mines and gold diggings, probably used 2,000 years ago, were also uncovered by Mr. Rooster.

British and South African engineers who have examined the sites of these lost people who may have furnished gold for Solomon, were amazed of the ingenuity of the ancient builders.

And into this long-forgotten industrial picture factory sites and the modern dwellings of a new community, development may be fitted when peace is won.

King Solomon's mines are reputed to have been sited in the fabulous country of Phihir, which some historians say was in East Africa.

Professor R. G. MacAlister, the famous explorer, said "The centre of speculations is a group of extensive ruins at Zimbabwe, Mashonaland, the identical ruins referred to in the Rooster report."

Canada's Food Output

Production Next Year Will Be Ample For All Needs

There will be plenty of food in Canada in 1945 to satisfy Canadian appetites, which are bigger than ever before. This is the belief of A. M. Shaw, chairman of the agricultural products board, which has directed Canada's food output since the beginning of this war.

Besides being able to fill the stomachs of Canadian civilians and the in the armed forces and meet its overseas contracts, Mr. Shaw is confident Canadian agriculture can help UNRRA feed the liberated peoples of Europe if such help is required. The Dominion has already supplied a large amount of wheat to UNRRA.

The latest survey by an Allied combined food board committee reveals that Canadians in 1944 ate 10 per cent more than they did in pre-war years and four per cent more than in 1943. But despite growing appetites, Mr. Shaw believes there will be as much food, and probably more, in Canada's national pantry in March, 1945, when it hits its annual low point, as there was at the same time this year.

Eating habits developed by Canadians during the war, especially by those in the services, may affect Canada's agriculture favorably in peace in Mr. Shaw's opinion.

Has New Title

Queen Elizabeth Has Been Made A Bencher Of The Inn

Queen Elizabeth recently added a new title to those she already holds. She was made a Bencher of the Inn.

In a 10-minute traditional ceremony, the Queen, enrolled as a student in the Middle Temple (law courts), was called to the bar, and was called to the bench. It takes an exceptional law student years to follow the same procedure.

The Queen became the first woman bencher of the Middle Temple. Queen Mary is a Bencher of Lincoln's Inn, King George of the Inner Temple, the Duke of Windsor of the Middle Temple, and the Duke of Gloucester of Gray's Inn.

The traditional dinner which follows the Queen's call to the bench was omitted because of bomb damage to the law courts.

SMILE AWHILE

Foreman: "Don't you see that sign, 'No hands wanted?'"

Applicant: "I do, but I promised my wife I'd really ask for a job today, and that's why I applied."

Husband: "What extravagance, you have two hats to match that one dress."

Wife: "Oh, no, I haven't. I've only one dress to match the two hats."

Tim: "What was the cause of the collision at that corner today?"

Jim: "Two motorists after the same pedestrian."

An interne went to a public library and asked for a copy of Dante's Inferno. When the book was presented he looked at it dubiously and asked: "Is he the best authority on the subject?"

Teacher—What did the Prince do to wake up Sleeping Beauty?

Mary—I don't know.

Teacher—Now what does mother give you when you wake in the morning?

Mary—A spoonful of cod-liver oil.

Holiday-maker (to country bus-conductor)—What time is your bus due at Fallow Green? Conductor—Hi! Bill, what time did your missus tell you to be one for tea?

"Which would you prefer in your future husband—his ability or appearance?" asked the pretty girl. "Appearance, my dear," replied the splinter, "but he's got to appear pretty soon."

Mistress—This food tastes terrible. Did you salt it? New Cook—Yes'm, but I never used that brand before. It was called Epsom salts.

Addressing a political gathering, a speaker gave his hearers a touch of the pathetic. "I miss," he said, brooding away a not unmanly tear, "I miss many of the old faces I used to shake hands with."

"I love your daughter, sir. I would suffer to my dying day if I should ever cause her a moment's pain."

"You're right, young man, you would. I know that girl."

Eden Stands Firm On Britain's Policy In Greece

LONDON.—Standing pat on Britain's armed intervention in Greece, Foreign Secretary Eden urged quick re-establishment of face-to-face contact between the foreign ministers of the three great powers and urged that the only way Britain may have erred in Greece was in failing to take troops of the Allies into Greece along with her Tommies.

Opening the governments defence in the face of bitter Labor-Liberal attacks on British policy in Greece, the foreign secretary denied implication that British policy was dictated by sphere-of-influence plans and said Britain was "seeking nothing for ourselves in Greece—neither strategic advantage nor economic nor any other advantage of that kind at all."

He said the government would "welcome quarterly meetings between foreign secretaries of the great powers as they used to have before to deal with some of these matters."

"The prime minister and I," he said, "have said over and over again that we would go anywhere."

Mr. Eden maintained that the "only criticism that could have been made (about Britain's policy in Greece) is that we ought to have brought contingents of the others with us as well."

"The government, I say quite frankly, did not foresee matters would turn out as they have done and in a fashion all of us deeply deplore," Mr. Eden added.

"I do not know what other decision we could have taken but to go into Greece," the foreign secretary said after government policy had been criticized by such members as Arthur Greenwood, leader of the Labor opposition, Sir Percy Harris, Liberal, and Aneurin Bevan, bitter Labor party critic of Mr. Churchill.

The foreign secretary made it clear that the government was not withdrawing from its stand that intervention was necessary. Indeed, he said, "we could perhaps have been censured for not having intervened in Athens on behalf of law and order at an earlier date."

Mr. Greenwood had said there was great perturbation among Britons and their Allies as to the situation in Greece.

GERM CARRIER

Mosquito Blamed For Carrying Encephalomyelitis In Saskatchewan

TORONTO.—A report on 44 deaths in Saskatchewan in 1941 caused by encephalomyelitis, carried by mosquitoes, was presented at the 19th annual Christmas meeting of the Canadian Public Health Association, laboratory section, here. The report was made by W. A. Riddell and Elsie McNeely of the Saskatchewan department of health.

The 1941 epidemic resulted in 543 cases of the disease and research showed it to be carried by the mosquito family.

Other papers presented at the meeting dealt with methods of assaying penicillin, occurrence of benzene poisoning among industrial workers, and a report on diphtheria immunization.

EMOTIONAL AILMENTS

Sailors Of Newfoundland Command Are More Optimistic

A NEWFOUNDLAND PORT.—Psychiatrists at this base say emotional ailments among sailors of the Royal Canadian Navy's Newfoundland command have dropped sharply since D-day, and they believe rising optimism may be a major cause.

"It's quite likely," they think, that one of the reasons for the decline is a general feeling that victory now is assured, thus increasing the average sailor's hopes of returning safely to his home and friends.

PEACE OFFENSIVE

Says Germany Looking For Something Better Than Total Surrender

LONDON.—Berlin propagandist hinted that Field Marshal Von Rundstedt's counter-offensive might be a "peace offensive" designed, through attrition, to gain for Germany something better than unconditional surrender.

Dr. Karl Scharping, the German radio's chief political commentator, said: "In view of our offensive in the west Germany must force her enemies to go all out."

Canada has an estimated 3,500,000 industrial workers, according to a 1944 survey. 2600

Franks Flying Suit Is An Aid To Aviators

OTTAWA.—Air Force headquarters made public details of one of the best-kept secrets of the war—the Franks flying suit which eliminates "blackout" in high-speed flying.

Invented in 1939 by Wing Cmdr. William R. Franks, O.B.E., of Toronto, formerly of the University of Toronto, the suit has been in restricted operational use off British and U.S. aircraft carriers since 1942. Dr. Franks, born at Weston, near Toronto, attended public school in Regina when his parents took him west as a child.

Developed by the R.C.A.F. and the Banting Institute, University of Toronto, the "F.F.S.", as it is known in secret air force documents, prevents "blackout" in fighter pilots, thus giving Allied air forces a tremendous tactical advantage in swirling dogfights miles up in the sky. Safeguard against the "blackout" hazard, they can turn faster than their adversaries and get on their tails.

"Blackout" is an air force term for temporary blindness, sometimes leading to unconsciousness, caused by the action of centrifugal force on the pilots of fast-manoeuvring aircraft. Columns of gas or fluid such as air or water are contained in a rubber skeleton lining and held comfortably close to the pilot's body from ankles to chest by non-stretchable fabric. During sharp turns at high speeds, producing centrifugal force, corresponding force from the suit balances pressure inside and out and permits the normal flow of blood to the brain. Prior to his enlistment in the R.C.A.F., Wing Cmdr. Franks was an associate professor at the department of medical research, University of Toronto, and a close colleague of the late Sir Frederick Banting.

NEW UNIVERSITY

Agricultural College At Guelph To Receive Full University Status

TORONTO.—Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph will receive full university status and be removed from political direction under terms of legislation to be introduced by Agriculture Minister T. L. Kennedy at the next session, the Globe and Mail said.

A committee appointed some months ago by the agriculture department is finishing a report on the college. It is understood this committee will recommend that O.A.C. be placed under a board of governors and empowered to confer its own degrees. Degrees currently are conferred by the university of Toronto. Dr. G. I. Christie, principal of O.A.C., is expected to be named president of the new university, which may be called the University of Ontario. It will be the first agricultural college in the Dominion.

PLENTY OF FOOD

Reserves On Most Farms Are Adequate For All Demands

OTTAWA.—Full feed bins today were like money in bank for thousands of Canadian farmers.

Department records showed that 1944 had been a good, if not a bumper, year for feed, and the reserves on most farms have been built up to the point where the demands of Canada and her allies for meats and dairy products probably can be met for a year or more.

Officials said the improved Ontario feed picture would ease what had been a growing strain on feed supplies in the west. From Oct. 31, 1941, to Oct. 31, 1944, the movement of grains for feed to the east under the federal government free freight policy has totalled nearly 58,000,000 bushels of wheat, oats, 90,000,000 bushels of barley, 67,500,000, rye, 1,435,000; screenings, 152,000 tons, and mill-feeds, 1,780,000 hundredweight.

The cost of the movement to the government has been $39,609,000.

Will Hold Debate On The French-Soviet Alliance

PARIS.—The French consultative assembly prepared to open debate on the French-Soviet Alliance amid authoritative reports that the Moscow conferees had agreed on mutual support in projected amputations of German territory on both the east and west in eventual peace settlements.

Assembly members who heard Foreign Minister Georges Bidault's report on the treaty in a closed session of the foreign affairs committee said France consented to retreating of the Soviet-Polish frontier along the Curzon line and giving to Poland German territories east of the Oder in compensation for territory she would lose to Russia on the east.

Russia, in turn, they said, promised to support French claims to the Rhineland and Ruhr industrial basin in western Germany. This territory, according to the most prevalent French view, should be cut off from Germany and set up as an independent state under French and Belgian suzerainty.

Meanwhile, the foreign affairs committee turned down a motion by Louis Salant, president of the National resistance council, providing that France propose a similar alliance with Britain and the United States. The committee said the moment was not opportune.

Canadian Naval Crew Save A Valuable Cargo

OTTAWA.—Three Canadian naval men have won commendation from Admiral Sir Charles Little, chief of the Portsmouth command, for their part in a salvage operation, during a wild gale, of two United States oil barges in the English channel. The barges and cargo were worth $150,000.

A naval release identified the men as Lieut. D. S. (Pincher) Martin of Halifax; Lieut. T. C. Marshall of Vancouver and PO Eugene Peters of Regina—all of the corvette Mayflower.

The Mayflower was escorting a convoy in the English channel one morning in October when two 1,000-ton barges were sighted without escorts. The Mayflower left her convoy, which was out of any danger zone and investigated.

The two barges were found drifting 15 miles off Le Havre after having apparently cut off their tow the previous day during a heavy gale. The sea was still very rough and the decks of the two barges, fully loaded and low in the water, were continuously awash.

The barges were tied together, and after numerous attempts the crew of the Mayflower succeeded in securing a line on the port side of one of them, taking together in tow astern, then taking the other in tow astern. Several times as the tow ropes kept parting. The sea was running high during the following 12 hours and skillful seamanship was required to keep the barges, which were being tossed about like corks, from damaging the corvette.

"It was a lucky thing for us we were told to anchor on return to harbor," said Lieut. Marshall. "I had no lines left at all."

No more privacy than a goldfish

While bringing its policyholders all the advantages of competitive business, life insurance "lives in a glass house." It has no more privacy than a goldfish. Complete details of its operations are available to policyholders and the public at large, in the 700-page Annual Report of the Dominion Superintendent of Insurance, and in Provincial Reports.

Under the laws enacted at Confederation and constantly broadened and improved during the past 75 years, policyholders enjoy the double protection of both Dominion and Provincial supervision. They receive full information about the life insurance business in Canada: its investments, its policy funds, its contingency reserves, the volume of protection which it provides and, in fact, the whole detail of its operations. No other industry in Canada is under such continuous and experienced supervision.

Life insurance is the outstanding business example of private management under government supervision in the public interest. Within this democratic pattern, the faith that Canadians have in their life insurance has been vindicated through wars, epidemics, panics and depressions. Within this pattern, the interests of four million Canadian policyholders are safeguarded.

It is good citizenship to own LIFE INSURANCE
